

The Winter Commission Report Revisited Order Form

Commemorating the 15th anniversary of the Winter Commission report, the authors in this special issue of Public Administration Review assess the enduring and new challenges confronting state and local governance. They illuminate issues of performance and accountability related to political context, the specifics of public administration, and intergovernmental relations. In these stressful fiscal times, which have yielded a new cluster of hard truths and tough choices for state and local officials, they identify avenues for improving performance.
